

India Uzbekistan Bilateral Merchandise Trade Relations

Subhasis Bera

Associate Professor

FORE School of Management

New Delhi 110 016

e-mail: sbera@fsm.ac.in

Abstract

Deep rooted relation between India and Uzbekistan since Indus civilization grew from official to people's friendship. As a result every possible aspect of bilateral relations has been tapped. Still the trade relation between the two countries leaves scope for improvement. In search of greater scope and possibilities in enhancing trade, this paper revisits the bilateral trade relation between the two countries. Using descriptive statistics and ad velorem equivalent index, this paper finds that the import restriction is one of the major hindrance for improving the bilateral merchandise trade between the two countries.

Keywords: Bilateral Trade, Bilateral Relations, Trade Restriction, Export Import Restriction

Acknowledgement: The infrastructural support provided by FORE School of Management, New Delhi is gratefully appreciated.